THE BIGGER PICTURE

Duration: 3 hours

In this exercise, we put the canvases next to each other and each team member takes turns drawing lines across all pieces. We draw many lines until we have a nice abstract composition.

Each team member chooses their own colours and paints their own painting.

This exercise is all about letting go of a part of the ownership over our work - for the bigger picture. It might seem hard at first, but we come to understand that we can quickly let go and embrace the predetermined structure. We also see that our own contribution is as important to other's own work and success. A game of letting go of ego and really focusing on the big picture — literally — because when the painting is done, the individual works are a result of a joint effort, but they function even better when put together, revealing the original composition we started with.

2

GENERATIVE PAINTING

Duration: 3 hours

There are three categories of words to draw from. Team members takes turns in drawing a word, which everyone then for themselves has to paint, according to their interpretation. For example, two team members drew “prickly black”. Everyone now has to paint how they interpret this phrase.

This is a really fun exercise that shows us how the same input or assignment can lead to completely different solutions, which are solutions nevertheless. It helps us be more creative and think more abstractly.

Although each team member paints for themselves, the inputs are joint efforts, which is often the opposite in corporate settings. In the end we all look at the work and speak about our process which is an integral part of the exercise.

Here, each piece has the same value and there is no right or wrong interpretation. It shows the value of each individual as a very unique addition to the team.

MEDITATIVE GEOMETRY

Duration: 3 hours

3

The idea for this class Meditative Geometry actually came from the indie video game Monument Valley. In the game, a character has to make her way across these blocks and structures and you have to solve the way for her to pass. I was immersed in the game for hours and loved the aesthetics of it as well.

With this class, you slowly construct a world of blocks, and then we work on getting the three-dimensional illusion, the illusion of space.

We called it meditative because the process is quite relaxing, there is not much to think of in terms of the composition as there are templates to choose from, so the painting process is about colouring in the surfaces, which is a slow, relaxing process.

WATERCOLOUR&WINE

Duration: 2 - 3 hours

4

In this session, you will work with watercolours, known for their unique translucent nature. You will also get to experiment with drip watercolours, an extremely fun and versatile technique which allows for a lot of self-expression and teaches you to let go!

You will learn how to paint simple but intriguing botanicals. Through this exercise, you will learn the basics of watercolour painting - the wet on dry technique, the wet on wet technique, as well as mixing and shading watercolour. These exercises will boost your painting confidence, even for the most un-believing!

This workshop is suitable for absolute beginners as well as those with prior watercolour knowledge. It's a perfect idea for a friend's night out, a family evening or corporate event.

SLOW DRAWING

Duration: 2 hours

5

The Slow Drawing session is all about slowing down through drawing.

By using a simple technique, fine-liners and paper, each drawing is built dot by dot or line by line. Seeming complex on first glance, the drawing techniques break down drawing to repetitive instances and technical exercises, that makes it possible for everyone to follow. Interesting prompts such as “imagine a squirrel running through the forest” spark our imagination and make the experience a really fun one for the whole group!

The technique cultivates patience and makes us more mindful - it also puts the pressure off of having to finish a drawing, and is rather seen as a continuous work in progress. In the session, you will also get a good understanding of the tools and techniques which you can further use in cultivating your own slow drawing practice.
